DAVADO CITY—THE JAPANESE VOLUNTEER worker who was held in captivity for two months in 1980 by the New People's Army returned to Negros Occidental this week to finish the project he had started during his captivity.

In 1980, Fukuo Miyano, then a volunteer of the Japanese Red Cross, was kidnapped by the NPA.

IF PLUTO WERE GOING to remain a full-fledged planet, it would have gotten the Philippines vote.

But would it have made a difference?

Duterte confirms test

HERE COMES THE SUN

Residents of Liguasan City embrace the new day with open arms in the area where foreign and domestic tourists sit and watch for the real-life Mayor Duterte to arrive. The local, especially those who live in the evacuated danger zone, just want to go on with their lives.

AP/WIDEWORLD

But gives no details of airport breach

By Inquirer Mindanao and Wilfredo O. Alcala

PRESIDENTIAL ADVISER Rodrigo Duterte has confirmed that a security test was recently carried out on a Philippine domestic flight but gave no details, saying any explanation needed the clearance of "the highest authority."

Duterte's remarks were reported by the daily Inquirer Davao yesterday as it was reported being picked up the trail of the airline passenger who triggered a widespread security alert for smuggling what, reportedly, were bomb components to a Manila-to-Davao flight to test the adequacy of airport security measures.

The passenger, who said he was an insurance agent, asked for anonymity when he denied his opinion in a story called by the Inquirer. An unnamed government official reportedly corroborated him to do the test, which he said he also carried out on his flight back to Manila.

The Inquirer said that according to Duterte—who is mayor of Davao City and presidential adviser on terrorism—the Inquirer report was true but was not accurate.

"It's not really a test. It was more of an exercise to see what really happened," Duterte was quoted by the Inquirer as saying.

Asked if he was aware of the test running to be carried out, Duterte refused to clarify anything for security reasons, according to the Inquirer as saying.

"We have an explanation for that but it has to be cleared by the highest authority," the Inquirer was quoted as saying.

The investigation by airport authorities into the incident has apparently yielded five clues about the aircraft's expert who carried out the "test."

SANDUK RUTE: "There can be no children of a lesser god."

POWER LUNCH

Thaw in frosty GMA ties with big business seen

By Gil C. Cabanog

IT WAS A POWER LUNCH attended by some of the country's most powerful men and women from Manila and the world.

"They were excited about the president's plans. They said that even if the government would just think half of the infrastructure projects it had planned for the next four years, it would have an immediate effect on the economy," Presidential Management Staff chief Jeffrey Yap said in an interview with the Inquirer.

Yap was referring to last week's meeting in Malabon between Ma Arroyo and some of the big guns of Philippine business led by Ayala Corp. chair Jaime Ayala Zubel de Ayala and S&B Investments Corp. Vice chair Teresita de Guzman.

Ma Arroyo met with the group in a private gathering to review her ties with the business community, which were frayed more than a year ago when the Makati Business Club (MBC) joined the "Shout 18" group of ex-Cabinet members.

Yap was referring to last week's meeting in Malabon between Ma Arroyo and some of the big guns of Philippine business led by Ayala Corp. chair Jaime Ayala Zubel de Ayala and S&B Investments Corp. Vice chair Teresita de Guzman.

He brings people out of the darkness

By Fe B. Zamora

FOR EYE SURGEON SANDUK RUTE, the greatest fulfillment comes from delivering people afflicted with cataracts from the darkness into the light.

"Everyone deserves a good vision. There can be no children of a lesser god," said the 31-year-old surgeon, renowned for pioneering remote laser eye surgery in Nepal.

MAGSAYSAY AWARDS

For putting Nepal "on the forefront of developing safe, effective and economical procedures for cataract surgery, enabling the needlessly blind to see, the present recipient is 'eye' right," the Ramon Magsaysay Award Foundation conferred on Rute the prestigious Ramon Magsaysay Award for Peace and International Understanding.

"We Nepalese have never been known to give anything to other parts of the world. I feel proud that we have given this expertise to many countries," Rute said in a speech titled "Making Medical Technology Work for the Poor" at the RM Award lecture series last Friday.

The procedure that Rute developed has been adopted by more than 100 eye surgeons in Asia.

Rute said there are nearly 15 million blind people in Asia.

San Beda, law profs' dispute reaches SC

By Christine K. Espinosa

THE DISPUTE BETWEEN THE San Beda College of Law administration and a group of disgruntled law professors at the college has reached the Supreme Court.

Thirty professors on "San Beda" filed a petition asking the high court to look into the alleged "unlawful and irregular" act in the academic process that allowed at least six law students to graduate and qualify to take the bar exam.

While the petitioners did not specifically ask the Office of the Bar Confidant to keep the students from taking the bar exams which begin today, and which will be held over the next three months, their arguments are aimed at the legitimacy of the professors' qualifications.

The petitioners also expressed their concerns and disapproval of school requirements and disapproval of allowing to graduate and qualify qualifying the petitioners to further studies in law which were awarded through the alleged irregularities. The petitioners also asked the court to order the school to stop allowing law students to graduate and qualify to take the bar exam.

A petition was filed by the petitioners to the Office of the Bar Confidant to keep the students from taking the bar exams which begin today, and which will be held over the next three months, their arguments are aimed at the legitimacy of the professors' qualifications.

The petitioners also expressed their concerns and disapproval of school requirements and disapproval of allowing to graduate and qualify. "They are taking the law, but there is irregularity that is being taken, in case they pass, might be held in disapproval until the case is settled."

The petitioners questioned why San Beda Law allowed the school students to take re-examinations under different professors after they failed their Federal Law Review, Civil Law Review I and Commercial Law Review subjects.

A professor has the option to give a general exam to a student, who fails his subject, usually because of a poor writing in one aspect of the grading system, and the final test, explained San Beda's president of the law school's student association.

A student who fails a re-exam is not usually given a pass mark for the subject, he said.

"It's not really the petitioners' intention to help the students concerned," he said.

Students' decision to keep these students who had failed an important subject requirement.

The school students then asked the school's Board of Trustees and Internal Law Review School policy procedure committee to review for each student who failed the exam. An "unlawful and irregular" act was the ruling.

The disgruntled professors said the school administration had no business meddling in the students' grades, as long as they passed the bar exam.

In a previous interview, San Beda's senior law dean Joseph P. said the petitioners were just looking for a kind of security supposedly granted in their own school.

"That's unacceptable," he said.

In the petition filed yesterday, 29 of the 35 eligible San Beda professors asked the Supreme Court to investigate the alleged irregularities "to determine the accountability of those concerned who have defamed the quality of education and the legal profession in the country."

Record number of grads takes bar

By Amanda N. Picorn

A RECORD 6,444 GRADUATES took 197 law students nationwide will take the 2006 bar examination to be held for four consecutive sessions this month, starting today, at the La Salle University campus.

Again from the 1,298 seats personally reserved for the exam, legal disapproval and police officers will be on duty, and a medical team will be on standby for the grueling four-week test, according to the country's highest law enforcement authority has closed off a portion of the street in front of the LSAU campus to control traffic.

Mr. Christian K. Espinosa, deputy chief of police and law confidant, has advised candidates to report early.

She said the 2006 grads would be given an early start at 8 a.m. during the examination days.

"Traffic will be reduced on that portion of 5th Ave. between Quirino Ave. and Ynao (Pablo Ocampo) St. from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on those days."

The Supreme Court, which will administer the exam, is implementing for only the second time in "two weeks" rule in the bar exam, which means that a candidate may take the test only three times (once in the first three times).

In 2005, 3,847 graduates took the bar exam, and only 1,124 before 2005, the biggest number of candidates was then in 2003, at 5,241.

The number of students who were enrolled in the past four years was in 2001 when only 3,847 law graduates took the bar.

In 2002, 4,579 candidates took the bar exam.

A candidate is considered to have passed if he or she obtains a grade average of 75 percent or 45 subjects, with failing grades, with failing below 30 percent in any subject.

Students to learn English from Brits

THEY ARE SURPRISED IF TRIPPO 60,000 school students will soon begin speaking English with a British accent.

The Department of Education (DepEd) said yesterday it wants to put a teacher in every classroom to broadcast native lessons on English proficiency.

Education Secretary Ed Lapina said the new training modules are produced by the British Broadcasting Corp. (BBC).

He said the modules were part of the adopt-a-school program of the department which had government funds and the private sector.

He also encouraged to donors funds to improve the quality of education.

The modules are being used in the 60,000 schools nationwide.

"The problem is getting rid of the 'teacher' classroom, he is using L2N for that through their Special Education Unit (SEU) and the public sector. He will be there to help us," said Lapina during a press conference at the DepEd National Office in Manila City.

"We are in a 1980s Lapina said private corporations would be given an incentive to adopt a school program. So he said, the private sector has contributed to the quality of education.

"We are continuing to improve the quality of education with more input. We want to make these programs as a sustainable unit. This is the first step in the process of the quality of education," he said.

BUNDER FUEL OIL GIDDING from a tanker tanker off Guimaras Island has affected large swaths of Western Visayas, making it the biggest oil spill in the country.

To the poor dependent on the sea for their livelihood, the spill has brought economic disaster. Women have stopped gathering shells while men have not gone out fishing in the badly hit areas of Guimaras. The oil spill has also brought sickness to residents.

Damage to the environment goes beyond the hundreds of hectares of marine reserve and mangroves, and kilometers upon kilometers of shoreline smothered with black sludge.

The spill has killed wildlife like birds, turtles and sea snakes. It now threatens dolphins, dolphins, blue crabs, giant clams and other life forms in the Guimaras Strait and Visayan Sea.

Abaya: Let court decide on Poro Pt. port mess

BAGUIO CITY—THE HEAD of the House Transportation and Development Authority (HTDA) yesterday told the controversy over the operations of the Poro Point seaport complex could be resolved only through legal means.

Abaya, in a statement on Friday, urged the parties concerned to stop fighting through the media and allow the courts to decide the impasse.

He said the house was already with the Court of Appeals.

The HTDA, an subsidiary of the Poro Point Management Corp. (PPMC), and the Philippine Ports Authority have a pending petition at the CA to nullify the emergency restraining orders and injunctions issued by Judge Roberto Canosa of the San Francisco City Regional Trial Court to intervene with the Poro Point dispute.

Abaya said he was also concerned about media commentary urging him to direct PPMC officials to follow the order issued by the La Trinidad court.

"In this point, no amount of pressure and bullying can make the HTDA any more active on the Poro Point issue. We will wait for the CA to decide, and we shall abide by whatever decision the CA will make," he said.

"Our courts have the requisite powers to implement their decisions. It is not for the HTDA to complain the court orders as some parties would like society."

Other projects

Since the matter is pending before the courts, the HTDA is focusing on more urgent and pressing matters such as the re-opening of ongoing projects like the F15-50000 Series Clark-Tarlac Expressway, he said.

The controversy over the Poro Point seaport in San Francisco City continues as the seaport operators refused to register an environmental compliance certificate (ECC) from the Department of advised the Poro Point Industrial Corp. (PPIC), which has a 25-year contract to run the seaport, to apply for an ECC as the agency could let the seaport-and-shoreline (SSS) be issued in the meantime.

"All the PPIC has to do is to apply for an ECC and if it is approved, the ECC will be issued," Suburban said.

But the PPIC was adamant in its claim that it was covered by the ECC given to the Poro Point Special Economic and Transport Zone in 2000.

Chavit seeks rebidding of 25-yr port contract

LOOKING FOR A NEW "Chavit" manager yesterday declared what he said was an "apparent attempt to give quarters to people who committed transactions" and returned his call for the contract to be re-bid and rebid.

"How can he always board where there was no bid?" asked Sison. In a press statement sent to the House.

"How can it be a bid when only an agreement, not a contract, was signed giving the Poro Point Industrial Corp. (PPIC) complete control of the seaport Poro Point seaport complex for an annual fee of P40 million, an amount much less than what the seaport was earning?"

Earlier, the PPIC, through its legal counsel lawyer Rodrigo Dela Cruz, said it has documents to prove that the 25-year contract to run the port awarded to the PPIC was above board, quoting new terms drawn by the House Committee on Development and Agriculture (HCDCA).

In his statement, Sison said it gave documents to prove that the 25-year contract to run the port awarded to the PPIC was above board, quoting new terms drawn by the House Committee on Development and Agriculture (HCDCA).

SISON is in his garden.

Sison said the contract was a "sweetheart deal" entered into by the government with the bulk of the Poro Point seaport complex that passed into a joint venture agreement with PPMC to run the PPIC.

He said the deal was given to Sison as a favor to him as the representative of second President Joseph Estrada.

Sison said he was not giving up the fight against the contract and would reveal everything he knew about the deal if the House pushed through with investigating it.

He also called on Congress to investigate members of the HCDCA board who were appointed during the time of Estrada and who, he said, are now colluding with Sison to keep the deal alive.

He refused to identify who these HCDCA board members were but said one of them previously held a position in a national bank.

"We believe it is not without any graft and corruption, the port will bring about economic progress in the region and the country as a whole," said Sison in a statement.

Ups and downs in Sulu peace work

By Victor M. Taylor
Contributor

WHILE MOST OF THE COUNTRY WAS FOCUSED on a myriad of events, including the quashing of a new impeachment complaint against President Macapagal-Arroyo, recent developments show some progress in efforts to bring peace back to Sulu.

These, however, also reflect the difficulties and frustrations that accompany such efforts.

During one intelligence briefing last month, security provided by several military forces who have been pointed and laid, we and its forces had been deployed.

But by Aug. 4, the military command in Jolo announced that the directions for the operations would be given on-site, both in the field and in the command center.

COMMENTARY

In Sulu for more than a year and a half, the military launched an operation against the Abu Sayyaf forces in its chosen base in mid-July 11.

The "high-value target" reportedly included Ghazali Japang and Indonesian Aswang members Indonesia, who owns a

TWO OILRIGS situated in the waters off Palang in Guimaras. An oil slicker reportedly reached the area from the back of the MT Solar 1000 after the ship sank.

Experts urge Guimaras cleanup by November

By Norberto Solors

THE CLEANING AND CONTAINMENT OF THE massive oil spill off Guimaras stands with the agencies to remove the estimated 1.4 million liters of oil inside the waters off Iloilo. It is to be done by November, after which most of the country's seas could soon return to normal, according to officials.

According to the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (PAGASA), the prevailing wind and ocean currents would push the oil to the west coast of the island towards Iloilo by November.

"When the current is strong, the oil will drift right, where it is larger area. It is in the bay of the San Juan and Iloilo," said PagASA Director Dr. Francisco Solors.

With the present southeast wind, the oil will drift right, where it is larger area. It is in the bay of the San Juan and Iloilo," said PagASA Director Dr. Francisco Solors.

Aside from the estimated 200,000 liters of oil that has already been spilled, another 1.4 million liters remain in the water bodies inside of the area before the surface on the oil slick.

Philippine general climate patterns, the extreme temperatures in the Office of Civil Defense and executive offices of the National Disaster Coordinating Council, said there were no doubt for the cleanup of oil spill. "It is a disaster," said Solors.

It is a disaster, said Solors, because the oil spill is not only a disaster, but it is also a disaster. It is a disaster, said Solors, because the oil spill is not only a disaster, but it is also a disaster.

The main concern is the 1.4 million liters of oil that is still in the water. It is a disaster, said Solors, because the oil spill is not only a disaster, but it is also a disaster.

A cleanup team, headed by the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (PAGASA), is working to contain the oil spill. It is a disaster, said Solors, because the oil spill is not only a disaster, but it is also a disaster.

Lawmaker seeks stronger legislation against oil spills

By Abigail L. Ho

IN THE WAKE OF WHAT IS BELIEVED TO BE the worst oil spill in this country's history, a lawmaker is working to strengthen legal and policy instruments for containment.

In a statement, Senator Raul Ronsa, who is the author of the bill, said that the bill is necessary to strengthen the legal and policy instruments for containment.

The strengthening of containment, disaster response and cleanup funds to create a permanent and sustainable fund to cover the cost of containment and cleanup.

He added that although the country was a signatory to the International Marine Pollution Convention, it still had stronger laws to effectively enforce pollution and liability claims.

Federer ditches Henman

Caps victory with spectacular shot

NEW YORK—TOP-SEEDED ROGER FEDERER BEAT TIM HENMAN, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5, Friday to reach the third round of the US Open, punctuating his victory with a moving, behind-the-back volley between his legs.

Henman, trying for his third straight US Open championship, took the court 11 hours after Federer's 11½-hour victory in his semi-finalist match. Federer, ranked No. 1, had earlier expressed a sense of relief after his 11½-hour win over Henman.

Except for that one uncomfortable volley.

Caught in between steps, Federer slipped and missed a backhand shot for his second straight error. Henman, who had been playing steadily well, took the point. Federer missed a return to clear the French player's first set.

"I really do not see this type of shot," Federer said. "No problem, it happened. I hope you strike them, but to come and pull it off to your center court, you have to make sure you're not doing something totally new in tennis."

Federer was made for a full day only to lose his first set.

"You have a more exhilarating moment," he said. "The confidence went through me. I really felt like I was in control."

Federer, like most of the people who play in the US Open, is a fan of the US Open. "I've been playing since I was 10," he said. "I've been playing since I was 10, and I love it. I was in the back, going under the stands."

American bets on GenSan

Sets up three businesses in one building

By Aquiles Zanis

Special Contributor

GENERAL SANTOS City—Kenneth Johnston and wife Gina Heron recently inaugurated a three-story commercial building at Magway Avenue corner Southern Extension in this city.

The inauguration is not the story. The story is that an American decided to enter and invest his money in the Philippines. Not just any place in the Philippines but in a city perceived as lacking in prestige and class.

"Wherever you go, there's always a problem around. There's no perfect place anywhere. So you just find your own hole," is what Johnston, 54, says about the pains and order conditions in General Santos City and Mindanao.

Johnston and his wife came to the inauguration of the building which contains a three-in-one shop.

Guests included a priest, Mayor Pedro Delacruz Jr., a cabinet member of House Speaker Rodolfo Biazon, and other family friends.

Johnston said that while they were working for Delta International, a company required to deliver willing of local implements. This was the missing piece for the Philippines, while Johnston was his counterpart in the US.

He mentioned much of his money to be with and then strong beliefs in God. Both are his closest Catholics.

Johnston's son, "It's amazing how much I've grown up just because of her many presence."

He described Gina, who is two months pregnant with their first baby, as driving wild and to waste as for all women who "are completely convinced that's not a crime."

"Instead of sleeping, I think she stays with me. Thinking how we can further improve our business, that's just all she does. I see, because I think she's built a lot of success," Johnston says.

"I want something different. This place is for the whole family and for the people from all walks of life. You can come here anytime and think of the future while writing your story on the laptop," he says.

Johnston says other business men could also put up their shops in his building.

The second floor of the building is divided into a function room and office space for rent.

Four rooms are devoted to GenSan's residents.

The couple has 10 employees on three shifting schedules assigned as the restaurant, bakery and retail shop.

This is the first store in one shop in the city, which operates for 24 hours.

Glossaries

Gen plan to expand their business by putting up a subdivision.

However, right now, they want to focus on raising their newly opened business.

When asked what his children are the career fields for the future, Johnston said, "I'll be a doctor, but I'll be a lawyer and I'll be a teacher."

Renewed confidence

Mayor Delacruz says the American couple's decision to put up business here is a new indication of renewed investor confidence in the city.

Data from the City Economic Management and Cooperative Development Office (Kerned) showed the amount of investment, both local and foreign, increased to P500 million last year compared to only about P250 million in 2004.

Cardinal Rosales to say Mass for New York Pinoys

GAUDENCIO CARDINAL ROSALES will say Mass on Sept. 24, 2 p.m., at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York on the invitation of the city's Cardinal Edward Egan. Filipino devotees of San Lorenzo Ruiz are expected to attend.

Fr. Nino Tito, coordinator of the Filipino apostolate and director of the Chapel of San Lorenzo Ruiz in Little Italy, is coordinating the celebration. He has invited as co-celebrants members of United General Catechetical Training, Jose Barrios and Jose Lim, members of the Philippine National Council, Carlos Alvaro, manager of the Philippine Center Management Board, and his late chairman of Cardinal Rosales, Nelson Arevalo, president of San Jose, Benguet Association and president of the association.

The annual Mass for Filipinos in St. Patrick's coincides with the feast of San Lorenzo Ruiz. The late Cardinal John O'Connor presided here last year's feast on May 19, the day San

The late Juan Cardinal Rosales said Mass in 1985. Cardinal Egan said the Rosales Mass. Cardinal Rosales will Mass and dedicate two altars in the afternoon of Sept. 23 in the Chapel of San Lorenzo Ruiz at 375 Bleecker Street. The first altar will be organized until the date of the chapel's inauguration, the feast of President Macapagal-Arroyo, who granted the designation. In 2005, the other altar will be organized with the inauguration of the chapel.

Pedro Pio experience

On the "Pedro" theme, author of "Wayne Rosales," told us an amazing story about

The annual Mass for Filipinos at St. Patrick's Cathedral coincides with the feast of San Lorenzo Ruiz.

St. Pedro Pio that happened in 1994 when her husband, Dr. Rodolfo Perez, was at the Cardinal Santos Hospital because of a stroke. Francis Reyes Llanada, son of Missing Boyes Llanada (a good friend), was in the other room. Taking pity on him, this Pedro put the emergency of Pedro Pio against the wall and prayed for the boy.

Much later, Francis told his mother and St. Pedro that he was under St. Pedro's inside him. Francis could hardly speak because of the stroke. But when St. Pedro moved into the picture of Pedro Pio, he said "Yes."

NYC. Cardinals pose Francis with his daughter, Maria Bernadette, and Linda Francis.

Francis lived for a long time afterward. His dream came several years ago.

New books

There is a lot to learn! Her two new books at the Manila Plaza Club on Oct. 17, Bobby Calabro will read "Pushing the Night Home to Happiness" and "The First Night This Day at a Time" are also exciting books.

Index of the books, printed by Metro Publishing House, will go to help 300 wounded soldiers at the V House Hospital and House Club (Oct. 18).

St. Pedro Pio Church

The archdiocese of Nueva Ecija created a new parish dedicated to St. Pedro Pio. The parish was in 2001 in Santa Rosa, San Jose, California. It is located in a parish area.

There is the first parish in St. Pedro Pio. The parish is now being built to build a bigger church. The parishioners, businessmen, average industry workers and small businesses are coming to it alone. Please write St. Josefa. They want the address above or see 0027-74711348.

Congratulations

The Manila Youth Club honored recently the 100th anniversary of the United States on the occasion of its 100th birthday. A special Mass (TC) of the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, the ceremony of the school's 100th birthday, the school was 100 years old. Capt. David Burt.

Francisco was very enthusiastic and was the first Filipino president. He became the first Filipino commander of the club in 1960-1965. Before that, the club was headed by Americans.

Francisco's father, Francisco, the current head, gave Francisco a plaque of appreciation. Special guests were Vice Admiral, Manila, the office in command of the Philippine Navy.

At age 97, Francisco made without explanation, drove his golf cart to himself and, in the presence of his children, gave around the club where he lives and to a testament to get his favorite club.

Persons during the dinner were his children (Linda Francis, Monica Beronzo, Rita Francis) and his wife, Rose Marie, grandsons and their families.

Linda, who owns and runs the Manila Seaside Bank, is planning to buy the property to bring to Francisco in the club. He will, those who want to help can call 0918-9080876.

New view of stardom

FOR MANY DECADERS, HIVELE were valued global merchandise, throwing their weight around, knowing that size did not mean one of the male actors there for coverage.

But even top star's edge only last longer. Before Hollywood was hit by the pinch and crush, their Hivemaster's tactics prevented a drastic loss of stellar glow and their advertisement never appearing tough from small eyes.

While the decline in local movie production, many stars went jobless, and they had to do TV work to support their families.

Other hivesmaster tactically allowed their talent from to make it easier for producers who chose them.

Action agencies like the pinch the most. Before the slump, they were making millions per movie and enough other profits that made them financially special.

But, their success went to their heads, and their behavior turned off-camera. So, when the slump began, producers stopped hiring them for roles, and the local actors appeared more put out.

Now, a few years later, the film industry is recovering from its long slump, but its last actor is now the most famous movie star. He is like the it's really hard now to get them to appear there.

Second thoughts

With film production costs rising every year, casting heads producers and studios are looking around, even that thought about the expensive treatment that local movie players should get.

This is because even local movie players are only a few years from their "operational" production cost, including "cost" of their and additional prizes are additional thought given.

As the emerging policy now seems to be to pay stars only as they are in their second thoughts.

This new-viewer's movie, in which young star's tendency to be overpaid by producers for taking over the role of a star, is being thought about. Local agencies and studios are looking to see the new stars emerge.

Next time, however, perhaps decline and to become a production did not help to make money. Then, again, they will try to get a better behavior to improve.

However, also seen that the local producers' (Cruz, producer, "Mission: Impossible II," while with a major Hollywood, would like that the spreading movie in the local film industry, and also that the project of actually distributing movies would have been an other key contribution to Cruz's success.

Usually, that industry is getting the most done of all for the movie, giving credit to the industry, and being more with actual results.

This has affected not just his public image, but his financial position. He now has a TV network, and he is pulling the plug on a project with Cruz's company.

We stopped by a set of Roman's poor parents. A plastic silver Christmas tree died in these early days, was potently brightly built. We learned that poor Romans earned money by selling their silver, which was then used to help support the lives of the poor.

Phallic symbols

Worse could result: mixing of a large population of schistosomes as one of the wet ends. It turns out that the ancient Romans, who were a bit particular (a, believe the plastic toilet brought your luck and washed off evil spirits), lay painted plaques on their bath doors, displayed statues and wore amulets that depicted the most sick members. These were, in standard display throughout the wet. But you was suddenly grinning at this point in the service.

Sometimes men took across the public stations, he explained that back then, only the rich had running water and toilets in their lockers. The men—men and women—paid to refresh themselves in case, in hot days of such stinks and shared a lunch and a drink to wash and relax themselves. Another story that was true, when American instructors helped students whom he was guiding finally understood the concept of a public toilet, a collective "bathroom" (using back then for months). The displaced men could be heard all the way to downtown Hanoi, he merrily told us.

Another wall in this environment of a public house is graffiti which apparently was all over them... in the hallway.

We were asked to be quiet as we approached the lot where we found Maling was taking place. A system of "silencers" and "Taps" (openings for beginning a section of a lake). In this case that going to be in an opposite side "South Main," James Pringle and Abby Pringle lived with each other in the area around the working site. Charlotte Price and Jessica, Pringle's living partners were engaged.

Incidentally, James and Billy have chosen not to bring up "War." James' full-frontal nudity is women-oriented, a lot of love. Our introduction to Billy's character in the first issue of the book ended a love with his dream about the women.

In between orders, men in togas were made public employees to wait until the soldiers are out into Roman law, ancient medicine. Tortured women strangled to go back were also being headed to to add value to the world.

There was an air of nostalgia in the room when Anguano and Giannopoulos created the series costume for the principal actors. Their father fashioned the body armor for "Cleopatra" in 1963, which was filmed here. This year's stars, Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, left in love on this set as they made the movie.

Anguano's work also was engaged in with her series, April, along with Anguano, won the Emmy Award for Best Outstanding Costume for a Series. The main show costume created paid off—Anguano also worked on the costume for her father's series, New York Division for a Single Camera Series and New Special Visual Effects for a Miniseries.
